

Influenced from the original album cover I like the idea of using the lyrics from the songs on the album to create a pattern or word for the digipak.

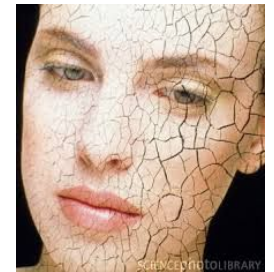

I think we should use a red and black colour scheme in order to have continuity across our products.

To keep with the broken theme and in the style of alternative rock I think broken rock instruments would look effective and interesting.

Following on from our idea of the puppet and our theme of broken I think it might be interesting to do a shot of the star with a porcelain effect with cracks.
