Don't let the people in your life make your decisions

The people in your life may be important but you shouldn't let them affect your opinions or decisions. A good example of this is politicians some are worse than others but all persist the idea of infecting your mind with their opinions telling you how to think, and the decisions you make you have to live with, it's not an act or a fad it's a political movement similar to feminism or civil rights we will not be ignored.

You can do what you want

The biggest myth the our culture is portrays is that as a regular member of society you have to go to work every day to pay off the mortgage you have to pay for your house while raising your two kids before inevitably you end up with a divorce and two kids who don't want to speak to you, the fact that most people don't realise you're not bound to your current situation and you can do anything you please and go anywhere you want it just has to be your decision.

1. Being an anarchist doesn't mean being a dick, I'm all for overthrowing a tyrannical government but the regular working class bloke doesn't deserve to be verbally assaulted because you consider yourself punk, politicians and the general public are very different people, that being said you still need to stand up for yourself none should be able to walk over you or at least they. The one percent owns more than 45 percent of the world's wealth, these are the people we should be abusing focus on the bigger picture.
2. If you take the plunge to become anarchist, do all in your power to achieve the cause, in order to achieve a free society certain things have to be done they may not be ethical or legal but they are most definitely necessary. When all is said and done those who help the cause will be rewarded and the politics of the world will be the ones in danger asking for help.
