Jaeden Riley was born to be a star, the music industry has a new Country Cowboy to look out for!

Riley's new album, "Nashville Destiny" regards his upbringing and reveals the truth about growing up in Nashville and why moving to Sheffield was such a dramatic change to life as he knew it. Paula Riley, Jaeden Riley's mum, moved the family to Sheffield as Jaeden's Dad was offered a new house in the countryside as a part of his new job. "One day my parents just called me and my three siblings downstairs, they told us to begin packing our stuff and a new chapter of our life was about to begin," The artist explains in his interview with us last week.

memories during an at home interview. It was then that the music career really started for Jaeden Riley.

The album will for certain not be his last, the talented singer has many more days of fame ahead of him. Talented is an understatement, the emotion is clearly shown through all of the tracks on this seven song album. How did such a young man produce such an amazing album? Special attention has to be paid to the third track on the album, "Country Love", a ballad dedicated to his parents thanking them for the fortunate variety of opportunities they have given him. "The town I knew, I had no clue." Is an intriguing line from the song as he is blowing raspberries at the town that made him. The artist said in a local press conference that "The most significant song from my perspective is 'Have you been here all along.' as it connects my past young self who was writing songs in their bedroom to a sensational star!

He began his career in 2017 when he would write song lyrics in his bedroom at the youthful age of 12. "I will never forget the Christmas my parents gifted me my first guitar. I was so excited and immediately started writing music." So, with a head full of ideas Jaeden was set for his career to initiate. Youtube was his starting point, "he would make short covers of Johnny Cash and Dolly Parton songs and publish them to his channel. I remember one afternoon he came running down the stairs yelling for me to look at the phone he was holding. One of his videos had reached two million views overnight. We were ecstatic!" His mum told us these exclusive family

So what's next for this able young star? With an already confirmed new album in full production the only way is up for the accomplished Jaeden Riley! Will he be the next Johnny Cash?
